Hybrid Course Planning Chart - Oregon State University

Ecampus and Center for Teaching and Learning
This form available at http://oregonstate.edu/ctl/hybrid-course-initiative

Instructor: Lewis
Course: BA101

Course Outcome	Final Assessment (C = in class; O = online)	Learning Activities & Resources Needed (C = in class; O = online)	Integration between In-Class & Online Components
Explain key business activities.	Students will be tested on key terms and concepts associated with these activities (C). They will also take a number of quizzes over reading material on the subject (O) Additionally they will have one graded assignment (O)	Students will prepare through assigned readings (O). Exercises and worksheets (C&O) Discussion on various activities and the related concepts and issues (C & O). Resources needed: Textbook, articles and videos relating to the activities, PPT presentation in class, micro lectures online. Discussion board in Blackboard. 14-16 hours of class time.	Classroom lectures, online discussion, and in-class discussion of readings. In-class exercises reinforcing or extending on-line learning. On-line exercises reinforcing or extending lecture topics.
Identify ethical issues facing businesses.	Students will be tested on typical ethical issues faced by business (C). They will also take a quiz over reading material on the subject (O)	Students will prepare through assigned readings (O). Discussion on various ethical concepts and issues (C & O). Resources needed: Textbook, articles and videos relating to business ethics, PPT presentation, discussion board in Blackboard. 2 – 3 hours of class time.	Classroom lectures, online discussion, and in-class discussion of readings.
Represent financial analysis models in a spreadsheet.	Students will be tested on spreadsheet proficiency and application (C)	Students will prepare through preparatory file work (O) and instructor led file work (C) Resources needed: Coursepack, access to MS Excel micorlectures online, working files and solution files	Classroom activities and online activities.